Admission, 25c.PAUL GRAY FALLS FROM A TRAIN NEAR OLIVEACCIDENT OCCURRED SUNDAY AFTERNOON, WHILE HE WAS ON BOARD NORTH BOUND TRAIN NO. 4—WAS GOING TO VISIT HIS SISTER.Paul Gray, one of the best known men in the city, met with a very painful accident Sunday afternoon, when he fell from north bound train No. 4, which left Pensacola at 12:05 o'clock.
The train at that time was near Olive, but the absence of Mr. Gray from the cars was not noticed until the train had nearly reached Cottage Hill.Mr. and Mrs. Gray left Pensacola on the noon train, intending to go to Cottage Hill for a short visit to relatives.
When near Olive Mr. Gray left one of the coaches intending to go into the smoker and talk with his nephew, who was there, for a few moments. In passing from one car to the other he fell, and received many bruises and cuts, and it is a wonder that he escaped with his life, as the train was going at almost full speed.Mr. Gray was not missed from the train for a few moments, but when Conductor Jennings passed through the various cars he noticed that the gentleman was not seated in any of them. He immediately began to question persons about the absence of Mr. Gray, and getting but little information, ordered the train stopped. A thorough search was then made, and upon the failure to locate him, the train was ordered backed slowly down the track. Near Olive the body was found. The gentleman was still conscious, though lying alongside of the track. He was assisted to the parlor car and taken to Cottage Hill, where medical attention was received. He is now at the home of Mr. Egbert Beall.It is presumed that Mr. Gray was suddenly attacked with vertigo, to which he is subject, and lost his balance, falling to the side of the track.He received bruises about the head and face, in addition to many bruises about the body. However, he was able to be up yesterday, but it will be several days before he is in condition to resume his duties.The escape of Mr. Gray from instant death was almost a miraculous one.
No one saw him as he fell, and but for the fact that he was to leave the cars at Cottage Hill, his absence would probably not have been noticed for a much longer period.

THE POWER OF STEAM.

Many May See, But It Takes Genius to Realize.When James Watt saw the steam causing the kettle lid to jump up and down he said "There must be power in that steam that it can lift such a weight."Millions prior to him had seen the same phenomenon and regarded it as an unexplained mystery.Recent scientific research has put its finger on the "cause" of Dandruff, Falling Hair and consequent Baldness, and has unearthed a tiny germ which eats the life from the roots of human hair.Newbro's Herpicide destroys this germ and consequently restores the hair to its natural state.Sold by leading druggists. For sale by W. A. D'Alemberte, druggist and apothecary, 121 S. Palafox. Send 10 cents in stamps for sample to The Worshippers of Strange Gods.

Snake worshippers are more numerous than river worshippers in the Punjab. They have always been a large denomination in heathen countries.
Why they worship snakes is a problem that has been frequently discussed to no particular purpose. But people who worship owls, bats, lobsters, rats and mice will worship anything, and perhaps snake worshippers are so common merely because snakes are so widely distributed and so far from exclusive in their habits. If a man worships an opossum or an ornithorynchus, he must go to Australia to do so, but serpents are everywhere. So is the earth (Pithiah, and the earth, as Hertha, Demeter and under many other names, has never wanted adorers.Even the untutored Pawnees are earth worshippers and bury articles by way of sacrifice, which is more economical than burning them, as they can be dug up again. The ancestral mound is a good deal adored in the Punjab. In Scotland it became the fair hill, as at Aberfoyle, and was treated with conspicuous respect in times comparatively modern. The church was usually built as near it as possible, perhaps to counteract the influence of the ancestral mound or to acquire any local sacredness that might be going.—London News.

The Ballot and Office.

In 1777 it was written into the constitution of Vermont that "the house of freemen of this state shall consist of persons most noted for wisdom and virtue, to be chosen by ballot, by the freemen of every town in this state."Time and conditions have lowered our standard. We are content with average wisdom and average virtue, and in years of apathy virtue and wisdom are quite forgotten, and we elect whom the machine nominates. Rotation in office, party control of nominating machinery, the ambitions of corporations and of party leaders—these are the forces that move the pawns on the legislative chessboard. Under the political conditions which the majority of the voters tolerate can we expect the legislature of a state to be composed of the best men of the community? And we know that the real danger of the democracy is the withdrawal of intelligent and humble men from public duties.—S. P. Orth in Atlantic.

General Schenck's Last Game.

General Robert E. Schenck was a famous poker player. Just a week before his death he sat around a table tipping his own house with General Schofield, General Rucker and two United States senators. It was a jack pot. Everybody had passed up to Schenck, who promptly opened it for the limit. One of the senators raised, the general raised back, and the senator stayed. Each drew one card. Then the betting began, fast and furious. Finally the senator said:"General, I have you beaten. I think I have a sure thing, and I don't want to bet any more money on this kind of a hand.""But I don't think you have me beaten. When I get enough of it I will quit."So the merry war of chips recommenced. Then the senator renewed his proposition and offered to fatten the stakes by a wager of a dinner for the five gentlemen present. This was accepted. General Schenck had four nines. The senator had a straight flush. But the little dinner for the five never came off. Two days before the evening set for it General Schenck died.

How Much One Should Eat.

One of the much discussed questions of the day on which there are almost as many opinions as individuals is the quantity of food one should eat. Doctors all agree that the majority of people eat too much. Babies from the day of their birth are forced to eat too much, and they grow up with this artificial appetite. The most reasonable estimate yet made is probably that which fixes one-twentieth of the average weight of the body as the average daily quantity required. If you weigh 140 pounds you should consume seven pounds of food. This includes drink as well as solid food. But it is ridiculous to set down a hard and fast rule.
Such a quantity might kill some, and there is a case on record of a man wasting away on a diet of seven or eight pounds of food a day. He cut down his diet to three-quarters of a pound of liquid and the same of solid food, and as a result he grew stout and lived to a ripe old age.

Siamese Love For Games of Chance.

The Siamese are devoted to the holiday making and ceremonies and the most important anniversaries or incidents of life, death and religion and which cause an infinite amount of money to be squandered and time lost.They love games—kittling, a sort of shuttlecock football and fighting with cocks, crickets, beetles and fish, though it is to be surmised that the main attraction of these pursuits consists in the scope thereby afforded for betting and gambling, which are the cardinal national vices.A Siamese will stake money on anything. Licensed gambling houses exist in the cities and are a large source of income to the government, which farms out the monopoly. A royal lottery is extensively patronized in Bangkok.

GREAT SUCCESS
OF ROSE COGHLANOPERA HOUSE AT MARSHALL, TEX., CROWDED—MANY WIT-NESSED PLAY FROM
THE STAGE.Marshall, Tex., Jan. 23.—A portion of to-night's audience in the Marshall Opera House, this city, witnessed the first performance of Rose Coghlan's revival of "Diplomacy," from the wings of the stage of the play house.
This was the first appearance of Miss Coghlan in Sardou's noted play in this city and as a consequence an immense crowd gathered in the local theatre.So large was the throng that at eight o'clock the fire officials stopped the sale of tickets and ordered the persons standing in the aisles to leave the theatre. This request threatened to create a disturbance, but in the emergency Miss Coghlan stepped before the curtain and invited the persons who were unable to obtain seats to come up on the stage. The invitation was gladly accepted and the play proceeded without further interruption.Everybody at to-night's audience was of the opinion that Miss Coghlan has scored the greatest success of her career in "Diplomacy." There were several curtain calls after each act and when the play was finished the delighted spectators compelled Miss Coghlan to express her gratitude before the curtain.The well known star, Howard Krie, who is also a favorite with southern audiences, appeared in the role of Henry Bauer, and Mr. Lynn Pratt scored an unquestioned hit at Julian.
The entire company is one of the strongest ever seen in this section of the country.Mr. Wm. S. Crane, of California, Md., suffered for years from rheumatism and lumbago. He was finally advised to try Chamberlain's Pain Balm, which he did and it effected a complete cure. The balm is for sale by all druggists.

Old Time Naval Methods.

Fancy sending a gunboat to the China seas without a surgeon on board!
But such things used to happen. The admiralty provided a well stocked medicine chest. But the captain knew nothing of medicine, so he had all the medicine bottles emptied into a big tub and then assembled the company. "All the stuff is there," said he, "and if any one goes sick he shall have a dose of the mixture, for there's bound to be something in it that will suit you!"— London Mail.

Duplicates.

Smythe—Remember when Chaffo was married last year how he kicked about the duplicate wedding presents?
Brown—Yes, Smythe—Well, that sort of luck seems to follow him. He had a somewhat similar complaint yesterday.
Brown—What was it? Smythe—Duplicate birthday presents. That is to say, twins.

Easily Decided.

This Question Should Be Answered Easily By Pensacola People.Which is wiser—to have confidence in the opinions of your fellow-citizens, of people you know, or depend on statements made by utter strangers residing in far-away places? Read the following:Mrs. Albert Pourtales, residing at 430 Government street, says: "Mr.
Pourtales has used Doan's Kidney Pills and values them very highly.
He had suffered from irregular action of the kidneys and dull aching pain across his loins and in the small of his back for years. The secretions from the kidneys caused him much annoyance. Whenever he caught cold or during changeable and stormy weather his back ached terribly. He tried all kinds of remedies but obtained little benefit. When he saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised he procured them at Sidney Kahn's drug store, No. 9 South Palafox street.
They proved to be a very effective remedy, relieving the urinary trouble and the dull, heavy aching in his back disappeared entirely. He recommends Doan's Kidney Pills very highly to his friends at every opportunity."For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N.
Y., sole agents for the United States.
Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

AMUSEMENTS.

LAST NIGHT'S PLAY.
Pensacola has been fortunate to see many musical comedies which were better in every respect than "The Girl From Kay's," and it has been also unfortunate to witness performances of this nature with considerably less merit.There is one good feature about "The Girl From Kay's"—it improves with each act. At the opening most people felt already the spell of disappointment casting its shadow over the occasion, but after the appearance of Jack Bernard as Max Hoggendheimer, the Jew millionaire, the clouds of dullness began to roll away and the spirit of levity prevailed. Mr. Bernard made an ideal Jew, ever on the alert to guard his possessions and constantly figuring in his social maneuvering how to compromise. The interpretation was so well presented, so accurately and minutely portrayed, that his every word and gesture called forth storms of laughter from the audience.The singers as a whole were but ordinary, but some of them possessed excellent voices, and repeated hits were made by several of them.The piece was well costumed, but the scenic effect was poor, in fact, about as poor as it could possibly be.
Some of the musical numbers were great hits, among them being "Taps," "The Girl From Kay's," "Semi-Detached," "Make It Up," and "Sufficiency." These songs with encore were very acceptable.All in all there is absolutely nothing to "The Girl From Kay's." Without Mr. Bernard in the play the piece would be rotten. Even then he has nothing upon which to hang his abilities. The best part of the comedy was the purely "Bernard Comedy."CRESTON CLARKE.
"Monsieur Beaucaire" with Creston Clarke, as the bright particular star, will surely command more than common interest at the opera house next Thursday.This attraction ought to prove something in the nature of a refreshing relief, inasmuch as its character differs so essentially from the offerings thus far seen in Pensacola.To the countless readers of Booth Tarkington's exquisite comedy-romance story, the advent of the drama-tized version will undoubtedly mean an entertainment of the most enjoyable kind.It will perhaps be remembered that it was Richard Mansfield who originally discovered in the novel, those elements which might readily be utilized for dramatic ends, and his suggestion was seized upon with avidity by the celebrated author of the novel, who had associated with him in the stage adaptation, Evelyn Greenleaf Suther-

Creston Clarke Has Beaucaire.

land, the outcome of which has been told in no equivocal manner, both artistically and financially.Mr. Mansfield only allowed his rights and privileges regarding the play, to leave his exclusive possession, owing to the demand made upon him for a new creation each successive season. Hence, what was Mr. Man-sfield's loss, has certainly been a splendid gain for Mr. Clarke, who seems to have met with cordial favor in the role of "Beaucaire" and his presentation of the play, on such a scale of genuine extravagance from a scenic and costume claim, that the patrons of the open house may rightly expect a production of picturesque elaboration.Mr. Clark brings with him a company of exceeding strength and uniform balance, therefore, such a combination is entitled to the greatest amount of box office attention.Talk about grave robbers, it is a question if there is a more noted one than this new twentieth century wonder, Bitter Apple Bitters, the remedy that is making Hattiesburg great with its cures and wonderful sales.

Fineness of Engravers' Lines.

In St. John's college, Oxford, is preserved a portrait of Charles I. in which the engraver's lines, as they seem to be, are really microscopic writing, the face alone containing all the book of Psalms, with the creeds and several forms of prayers.The learned Porson is known to have indulged in this species of curious idles-ness occasionally, and perhaps the Greek verses from the Medea of Euripides, with Johnson's translation of the same, for Burney's "History of Music," were executed by him. Though consisting of 220 words, they are compressed in a circle half an inch in diameter, with a small space in the center left blank.
